SUMMER 2026

7 THINGS I CAN'T LIVE WITHOUT

1. Gabriela Hearst – One of my favorite looks from her Paris Petit Palais runway show was the ivory, fitted, asymmetrical lace top. Crafted and made by hand in Bolivia and France, this cashmere crochet piece is a showstopper.

2. Kea Island – The new One & Only Kea Island is one of the most luxurious hotels in Greece. A cliffside resort with individual villas with private pools, entry terraces, and sweeping Aegean Sea views. A private beach club on a stunning bay and multiple restaurants make this a perfect romantic Greek getaway. The best way to reach Kea Island from Athens is certainly the helicopter transfer.

3. Evolis Sofa – Created by Massimo Castagna from Atelier Castagna, this modular, curvy-line sofa, with fluid and organic shapes, is the vision of today's luxury. It fuses modern and classic and is characterized by its graceful lines. A truly elevated and sophisticated design.

4. Paola Lenti – I am a huge fan of this famous Italian furniture designer. Her Afra lounge chair is one of her many unique, instantly recognizable pieces made out of the creative materials she selects. Designed with a steel structure and covered in a woven polyester Aquante yarn, it's a visual stunner.

5. Fendi Peekaboo Croc Bag – This rare and highly sought-after collector's edition bag is the ultimate 2026 must-have. The updated, iconic Peekaboo bag shows off the distinctive Fendi brand. The carefully curated durable crocodile skin, gold hardware and soft leather interior, are details that make it a special piece.

6. Vincenzo de Contiis – When it comes to unique, modern, sculptural pieces, it's impossible not to include Mr. De Contiis. His modern mind has imagined and created a series of beautiful vessels using previously impossible materials to combine, such as reclaimed marble, fiberglass, and recycled metals.

7. Givenchy – Straight off the 2026 prêt-à-porter runway show, the Givenchy rainbow drop pendant necklace and earrings made a splash at their debut. The amber and gold tones and dramatic large stones are modern and glam. The perfect must have, accessory for this season.
