

$3.99 SPECIAL

99 SEX MOVES

Sweet and Slow,
Quick and Dirty, and Everything in Between

What Makes a Woman Irresistible

THE HOUR
MEN
CRAVE SEX MOST

Score a Slammin'
Bod
In 6 Minutes
a Day

Anna Faris

The Balls-Out
Confidence That Landed Her the Job—and Her Hubby

Get Long Hair Fast!

3 RAPUNZEL-WORTHY SECRETS

How to Deal With a Jealous Bitch...
When That
Jealous
Bitch Is You

Unleash Your Cheeks!

Why Guys Stopped
Loving the Thong

FASHION:
Basics You
Can Wear
Dozens

BY BETHANY HEITMAN

Chic, Cheap Bedroom Ideas

You want your space to be cozy and sensual and have some personality. These tips will help...and none require big bucks.

Simple but smart tricks (matching sconces) pull it all together.

Make It Smell Great

Candles aren't a surprise, but they're so perfect for creating a relaxing atmosphere that you can't skip them. Right now, lots of candles come in pretty jars that look nice. If you lean toward a more kitschy vibe, check out Aunt Sadie's candles (auntsadiesinc.com). For something more chic, try Chesapeake Bay Candles (chesapeakebaycandle.com).

Show Off Chic Lighting

Framing your bed with a pair of sconces is not only functional, but it also makes your room look pulled-together. Put one on either side of your bed at a height you like. Tip: Find fixtures that mirror something else in your room. For example, if you have a metal bed frame or chair, buy metal sconces.

Hang Mirrors Instead of Art

Mirrors are less pricey than paintings and can make your room seem bigger. Look for some with cool decorative details, like a wrought-iron frame. Then hang the mirror so it faces a window or door and reflects the open space, thus "opening up" your room.

Get Major Drama With Curtains

Buy long curtains (you can get them cheap at stores like JCPenney), and instead of hanging them just over your window, have them start at the top of the wall, fall to the floor, and extend to a width beyond your window frame. Then pull them so they're open to the window's edge for a dramatic effect.

Pick Up Knickknacks

A few well-placed funky items give your room personality. Hit up a thrift store or flea market to grab pretty much anything that catches your eye...like a bunch of cool vases.

Add a Punch of Color

The quickest way to change a room is by getting an area rug. It'll add a coziness to your space and look great at the end of your bed. And here's where you can make a real style statement by going with a bold shade—think bright orange or turquoise—instead of the more expected bedroom neutrals.